To make your essay better, revise your draft by making sure that...

the beginning tells what is happening as the play starts.

the character's name is written before his or her words.

the main character says something important in the ending.

Where were we last time?

- ◆ In our last class, Owen revised his first draft of his play.
- ◆ He finished the  step. Now he is going to  and .

Just One Tiny Taste

Character: Simple Simon and a pieman

Setting: It is summer. the place is on the way to the fair. Along the way, Simple Simon meets a pieman.

Simple Simon: (shakes hands with the pieman)
Your pies look yummy?

Pieman: Would you like to buy one?

Simple Simon: No. I would like to taste one peace.
(Simple Simon)

Pieman: It will coss a penny for a taste. (pieman)

Simple Simon: (looks through pockets and shoes)
I don't have a penny.

Pieman: Then no pie for you

Simple Simon: Not even a taste?

Pieman: No penny. No taste. No pie!

Simple Simon: (walking off stage, calls to other people going to the fare)
Does anyone have a penny so I can try some pie?

Today we'll learn...

The Writing Process of Creating a Play

Edit & Publish

When you edit, you check your writing conventions.

Conventions

Check:

We just finished editing.
What should we do next?

Little Miss Muffet: (eats curds and whey)

Hmm, I love curds and whey.

Spider: (hangs in front of miss Muffet)

That looks delicious. May I have some.

Little Miss Muffet: Ahhhh a spider! (runs away)

spider: I guess that's a yes. Thank you!

Little Miss Muffet: (runs back angrily)

No, you can't take my food! Go away, spider!

Spider: Ahhhh! (jams away)

Little Miss muffet: Don't come back, annoying little spider!

Spider: (gives Miss Muffet a flower)

I'm sorry, Miss muffet. I just wanted a snack?
